Design Resources

The UTD eLearning team now offers instructional design consulting! Are you overwhelmed with putting your course materials in eLearning? Do you want ideas on how to make your course or a section of your course more engaging? Are you trying to incorporate new teaching or learning ideas or technologies into your course? We can help! Email us at elearning@utdallas.edu to make an appointment.

• Akbulut, Y. Implications of Two Well-Known Models for Instructional Designers in Distance Education: Dick-Carey versus Morrison-Ross-Kemp (No. ED496543).
• Cho, M.-H., & Association for Educational Communications and Technology Washington DC. The Effects of Design Strategies for Promoting Students' Self-Regulated Learning Skills on Students' Self-Regulation and Achievements in Online Learning Environments (No. ED485062).
• Faryadi, Q. Instructional Design Models: What a Revolution! (No. ED495711).
• Hinton, S. Multicultural Education Online for Graduate Teachers: Some Challenges (No. ED495857).
• Hodges, C. B. Lessons Learned from a First Instructional Design Experience. International Journal of Instructional Media, 33(4), 397-403.

• Koszalka, T. A., & Ganesan, R. (2004). Designing Online Courses: A Taxonomy to Guide Strategic Use of Features Available in Course Management Systems (CMS) in Distance Education. Distance Education, 25(2), 243-256.

